ATO HONG KONG ENCOURAGES LOCAL CONSUMERS TO GET THEIR U.S. VEGGIES ON!

From late September to early October, ATO Hong Kong partnered with local vegetarian Chef Influencer Elvis Chan to create original recipes and demonstration videos featuring U.S. vegetables. As of this report, the video published on both Chef Elvis Chan’s and ATO Hong Kong’s social media platforms generated 65,994 views and received at outstanding 3,259 reactions. This project enhanced ATO Hong Kong’s social media presence and increased consumer awareness about the positive attributes of U.S. fresh produce. Hong Kong remains an open market for food and agricultural products, hence it is not unusual to see a wide variety of U.S. fresh produce at the local grocery stores, particularly during the summer months. Leveraging consumer interest for plant-based recipes, ATO hopes to continue highlighting less known U.S. fresh produce already available in the Hong Kong market. In 2022, Hong Kong’s fresh vegetable market was valued at $792 million, the city’s top suppliers are China, the Netherlands, Japan, and the United States. Hong Kong top imports of U.S. vegetables were asparagus, lettuce, potato, carrot and turnip, onion, and cauliflower.

Chan Upbeat on Recovery Despite Deficit [The Standard, Oct 9]

The economy has been recovering since early this year although Hong Kong is expected to record a high financial deficit due to lower land sales, Financial Secretary Paul Chan Mo-po said. However, he said Hong Kong's financial situation over the long term remains healthy and that an abundance of caution remains the official mantra. He said the local economy had been recovering well since the border reopening and the city will also host more large-scale events, including the Global Financial Leaders' Investment Summit next month, which is expected to bring in a lot of business travelers. "The number of tourists has resumed to 70 to 80 percent of pre-pandemic levels. Retail sales has also recovered to 90 percent of the pre-Covid number," Chan said. "The most important thing is working together to boost the economic recovery in Hong Kong and bring prosperity back to the market so that people will feel the city has interesting events and good food, is safe, and they can make money here." Chan, who visited France, Britain, and Germany recently, said the European business sector had shown great interest in the Hong Kong as he touted the advantages the city has under "one country, two systems" and eased their concerns about rule of law. Asked whether U.S. sanctions against Hong Kong and mainland officials will deter overseas companies from coming, Chan said the business sector pays more attention to economic benefits and development. He said western countries, including the United States, are greatly invested in Hong Kong, adding they should develop with Hong Kong together. ATO Notes: For this year's summer months, Hong Kong has successfully recovered tourist numbers and overall retail sales to pre-pandemic levels. It is worth noting that recently, food retail sales have slowed for the first time since the pandemic as Hongkongers return to dining out (even to nearby mainland cities) but retailers are confident that grocery sales will pick up before the end of the year.

Visitors Flock to Hong Kong Over Mainland China's 'golden week' Holiday, But Retailers Say Extra People Did Not Mean Higher Sales [SCMP, Oct 5]

Hong Kong retailers are uneasy over business prospects for the next big holiday periods after the city had a net outflow of people over the Mid-Autumn Festival and National Day long weekend and those in the city did not spend in stores, despite higher footfall. Immigration Department statistics showed 1 million visitors came to Hong Kong from September 29 to Wednesday in the first post-pandemic celebration of the National Day "golden week" holiday, which ends on Friday. However, the number of tourists was offset by the 1.4 million Hongkongers who left the city on holiday over the same period. While there was a "notable increase" in foot traffic of up to 30 percent from September 29, retail sales had remained similar to a normal weekend. "Even though Hong Kong retail sales will still rebound by 16 percent in 2023, it is only a base effect and the structural challenges remain more important than ever." ATO Notes: Although there is a large inflow of visitors coming to Hong Kong during the "golden week" holiday, around the same number of locals of Hong Kong also left the city to mainland for cheaper dining and shopping. This will be an enduring trend if Hong Kong is not able to show significant distinction on the products the city has to offer, at present, mainland offerings are reportedly much more competitive.

Thousands Return Home to Hong Kong After Enjoying Good Deals in 'No-brainer' Shenzhen Over National Day Long Break [SCMP, Oct 2]

Thousands of Hongkongers have streamed through border crossings from mainland China and returned to the city on the last day of the long weekend, after enjoying good deals on food and self-pampering options in neighboring Shenzhen. Immigration figures showed 1.38 million people left the city from Friday to Sunday, including 989,071 residents. The statistics also showed 1.19 million people entered the city from Friday to Sunday, resulting in a net outflow of 482,652. Meanwhile, restaurant and massage operators over the border were delighted with a significant business surge from Hongkongers amid the long weekend. ATO Notes: This review supports previous reports on locals increasingly crossing the border to spend in Shenzhen. Shenzhen is only less than half an hour train ride from Hong Kong. Moreover, with Hong Kong offering new routes to the mainland at different subway stations, travelling to mainland will become more convenient for Hongkongers to visit.

Fitch Forecasts 65 Percent GDP Rebound In 2023 [Macau Daily Times, Oct 11]

Fitch Ratings anticipates growth of up to 65 percent in Macau's economy this year, driven by sustained recovery in the gaming and tourism sector. In its report entitled "Asia-Pacific Sovereigns – Peer Review," the new forecast by Fitch Ratings rose 19 percentage points compared to initial predictions made in December 2022 when borders were still closed. In its recent report, the firm said that the strong growth comes amid China's faltering economy – which adds to worries over surging youth unemployment and a weak property sector. The situation is thought to increase the likelihood of the government doubling down on support for the faltering post pandemic recovery. The city's gaming revenues have so far already reached $16.5 billion. Tourist arrivals have also sustained momentum and demonstrated consistent recovery, despite slightly lower arrivals in September compared to August's post-pandemic record high. Fitch Ratings also anticipates Macau's current-account surplus to increase to 25.6 percent of GDP in 2023. ATO Notes: Macau economy recover streamed beyond expectations and its gaming performance have steered the speedy recovery. During the summer holidays, Macau had 6 million visitors, in September gross gaming revenue was $2 billion and GDP growth stood at 117.5 percent.

Series of Events to Mark Mid-Autumn, Golden Week as Holidays Poised to Boom [Macau Daily Times, Sep 29]

Macau will see a series of activities to mark the Mid-Autumn Festival and National Day holidays as tourists are expected to swarm the city amid this holiday, which is poised to be record-breaking. Through a variety of cultural and commercial activities, artistic performances, art installations, and leisure dining options, this initiative aims to enrich the pedestrian experience for visitors. In addition, Albergue SCM will commence “Celebration of the Moon – Mid-Autumn Festival 2023” with festive specialties and drinks, various performances, and limited traditional rabbit lanterns for children. ATO Notes: Like Hong Kong, Macau has launched series of celebrations and events during the Mid-Autumn and Golden Week holidays targeting to boost the atmosphere and attract more visitors to travel to Macau. Reviews have been conservative over the overall achievement for Golden Week as the summer months have already past and overseas tourists are expected to drop as these are only local holidays.

Casino Revenues Slip as September Storm Rattles City [Macau Daily Times, Oct 5]

Macau’s casino gaming revenue growth slowed in September, falling to a five-month low as revenues fell slightly to $1.9 billion. Data from the Gaming Inspection, and Coordination Bureau shows gross gaming revenue soared 404.2 percent year-on-year, albeit from a low base. The numbers fell 13 percent from the previous month. Revenues were 68 percent of 2019 pre-Covid levels. Last month, the government ordered the shutdown of casinos for nine hours due to Typhoon Saola – a rare shutdown as the city braced for the storm when it hoisted its highest storm signal, No. 10. Along with amended travel plans for some would-be visitors, Typhoon Saola disrupted transportation and temporarily closed border entry points. Heavy rainfall in the week following the storm also kept bookings light. According to a Bloomberg report, analysts predict gaming revenue could return to 72 percent of pre-pandemic levels, the highest percentage since the onset of the pandemic. Citigroup Inc. analysts forecast a boost in revenue as Macau will see a major roster of events in the fourth quarter of the year, including high-profile concerts and a poolside dance party featuring former NBA all-star player Shaquille O’Neal. Secretary for Economy and Finance Lei Wai Nong acknowledged the 2023 forecast has already exceeded the government’s expectation of $17 billion.

700 Chefs Cook Up a Storm at Charity Gala Dinner [The Standard, Oct 10]

The seventh Charity Gala Dinner was held at the Hong Kong Convention and Exhibition Centre last night, drawing some 700 chefs from 22 different countries and regions to raise funds for the underprivileged, including the elderly, mentally disabled and subdivided flat residents. Restaurants Expect Up to 20 Percent Business Boost This Mid-Autumn Festival [The Standard, Sep 29]

A representative of the catering sector said they are expecting to enjoy a 20 percent jump in business during the Mid-Autumn Festival. Leung Chun-wah, Chairman of The Association for Hong Kong Catering Services Management, said the situation is ideal as many of the city’s restaurants are fully booked. He expected restaurants to have a table turnover rate of 1.5 to 2 times, reaching pre-pandemic levels. As for the National Day Golden Week, business is expected to go up by 20 to 30 percent, he added. Meanwhile, Leung said the “Night Vibes Hong Kong” campaign could only bring crowds to certain areas, and that even if shopping malls extend their opening hours it will not help bring more patrons to restaurants. ATO Notes: After pandemic without the government’s promotion, the table turnover rate was less than 1 times a night, for weekends, the occupancy rate is not typically fulfilled. Restaurants are hoping business will improve during the two big holidays. In the second quarter of 2023, restaurants receipts accounted for $3.5 billion, an increase of 24.3 percent compared to the same period last year.

Slow Start for Hong Kong Restaurants Offering National Day Deals as Residents Lament They Were Unaware of Discounts [SCMP, Oct 2]

Some Hong Kong restaurants offering National Day promotions got off to a slow start as discounts failed to draw crowds on Sunday and minimal in-store advertising left many unaware of the deals. Around 1,750 dining spots around the city were providing discounts and other deals to commemorate National Day, with some slashing prices by as much as 30 percent for certain dishes. Industry leaders had previously predicted that the long weekend including the Mid-Autumn Festival and National Day could generate as much as $153 million for the city’s struggling restaurant sector, with some hoping the discounts would boost sales by 20 percent. While Hong Kong restaurant receipts in the second quarter jumped by 24.3 percent year-on-year, many operators previously said they experienced a massive summer slump as residents flocked to nearby Shenzhen on the weekends. ATO Notes: The government has supported promotions and discounts encouraging consumers to dine out. However, not every local has been aware to those discount offers as promotions have not been massively advertised to the public. While there is still sharp improvement in restaurants receipts compared to same period last year, conditions have not returned to pre-pandemic levels.

Meanwhile, more than 1,700 restaurants, including Maxim's, Tao Heung, and some cha chaan teng chain outlets, offer up to 30 percent off for dine-in customers on National Day. Separately, various indoor and outdoor facilities under the Leisure and Cultural Services Department, permanent and specialized exhibitions at the Science Museum, permanent exhibits at the Space Museum, several museums such as the Heritage Museum and Museum of History, as well as the Wetland Park, were also open to the public free of charge. ATO Notes: Local government efforts continue to spur domestic spending. There is no room for authorities to ease the ban on aquatic products originating from 10 Japanese prefectures and metropolises at this stage, environment minister Tse Chin-wan said, adding that Hong Kong is under no condition to make any adjustments if Japan doesn't pull from its discharge plan. When asked if authorities would step up support towards the catering sector, Tse said the government has spoken to the industry and traders are well prepared. Tse also noted that the clearance time for Japanese food will not be extended from the current three hours. Having waited for 14 hours for clearance leading the seafood to turn bad, as reported by certain importers, was an individual incident, Tse said. Tse then reminded importers to use the free of charge 24-hour freezers at the border points, saying authorities will deploy more manpower for radiation testing. ATO Notes: During the first eight months of 2023, Hong Kong imports of Japanese seafood grew 10 percent to $331 million compared to the same period last year.
